

Web Redesign Committee (Ad hoc)
Report to the Board
Louisville, Kentucky
Annual Report, Sept. 30 2011

Last fall, the committee was charged with evaluating the current site's architecture, navigation, and design and to make specific suggestions for improvement.

In the winter, the committee evaluated the current site's architecture, navigation and design and come up with a number of areas of improvement. A meeting was scheduled to discuss the current site with the current host / designer.

In the spring, KLA President Leoma Dunn, Tom Underwood, and two members of the ad hoc committee met with the site's current designer, Rick Hogue to discuss redesign possibilities. Potential features were discussed as well as an estimated cost and a timeline for redesign. After review and approval by the executive board, the proposed navigational structure was sent to Mr. Hogue, who worked to create a home page mock-up for the committee to review. The estimated cost for changes was not to exceed $1,200.

As of now, the new navigational structure and design for the web site is now in place. Pages have been populated and should now be available to view at www.klaonline.org.

Many thanks to Tom Underwood and the executive board for helping get these changes implemented, as well as to the entire committee for working on this transition.
